Developments on Children's Rights

Protect the Children: Save the Children Sweden publishes a new guide for those Working and living with children Affected by Violence

03 March 2009 – Children of different age groups signal distress in many forms and the book is all about how frontline workers, adults and peers can follow up and support children harmed by violence – and how we all can work to prevent violence. A book developed by SCS's Regional Office for South and East Asia, the book is part of a package of learning material for child rights workers about relevant measures to protect children against violence. It discusses the different forms of violence and gives advice on how to act to promote the protection of children. It also underscores the role of the frontline worker to become the child's trusted helper and gives a rich insight into how to listen to the child - and how to "read" children and the "language" of distress.

UNESCO reports that Financial crises to deepen extreme poverty, increase child mortality rates

03 March 2009 – According to a new UNSECO study, the global financial crises sweeping through Wall Street and the European banking sector will touch the lives of the world's most vulnerable, pushing millions into deeper poverty and leading to the deaths of thousands of children, This report documents the potential impact of the current worldwide economic meltdown on the Millennium Development Goals, internationally agreed targets to eradicate poverty and reduce child mortality among other human development objectives. The report highlighted the prospect of an increase of between 200,000 and 400,000 in infant mortality and that child malnutrition, already rising, will be one of the main drivers of higher child death rates.

The authors of the report called for a concerted international effort to limit the impact of the financial crisis on the poor, including an increase of over $500 billion in International Monetary Fund (IMF) special drawing rights, along with governance reforms to give developing countries an increased voice, as well as the EU to provide a $4.6 billion aid adjustment.

Human Rights Council: 10th session opened

04 March 2009 - The Human Rights Council opened its tenth regular session which met from 2 to 27 March 2009 in Geneva with a three-day long "high level segment", where over 70 vice presidents and ministers from across the globe addressed the Council on their countries' efforts to promote and protect human rights..

A special day dedicated solely to the rights of the child was held during the second week, on 11 March 2009. During the session, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Navi Pillay presented her first annual report to the Council and engaged in an interactive dialogue with representatives of governments, non-governmental organisations and national human rights institutions.

The Council will be reviewing Oman in the session.

Council: Week two sees Children's Rights Take Centre Stage

09 March 2009 - The usual hustle and bustle of the Human Rights Council has, for child rights activists at least, been imbued with special significance at the international forum's tenth session, held in Geneva, Switzerland.

For the first time in the history of the Council, set up in 2006, a full day's work was devoted to the rights of children, thrusting the issue to the summit of the mechanism's agenda. The dedicated event held on 11 March 2009 at the Palais des Nations, included discussion of how the Convention on the Rights of the Child could be better implemented.

Human Rights Council: Statement on Child Sensitive Justice System – by International Save the Children Alliance and Child Rights Information Network (CRIN)

11 March 2009 - Human Rights Council – 10th session (March 2009)

Annual Full Day Meeting on the Rights of the Child

Child-Sensitive Justice Systems – afternoon panel

The statement shows that children's access to justice is extraordinarily limited. Because of their vulnerability, evolving capacity and dependency on adults, children are confronted with real difficulties in pursuing remedies for breaches of their rights. Save the Children and CRIN welcome significant steps that have been taken by some states to improve children's access to justice and call on all States to Incorporate the Convention on the Rights of the Child into national legal systems and make all rights therein included as justifiable for example

Working with the Private Sector to End Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents – A new document by UNICEF

11 March 2009 - This document has been prepared to help children and adolescents understand the role corporations, businesses and the private sector have to play in addressing sexual exploitation of children. It will also provide children and adolescents with ideas on how you can work with the private sector to end sexual exploitation, for example: how can you involve businesses in your work; and better understand what motivates businesses – how they think; what businesses have done already and what they need to be doing.

A Progress

Report and Global Survey on Statelessness by Refugees International called Statelessness: Nationality Rights for All

12 March 2009 - Despite gains made in recent years, more forceful efforts are needed to assist 12 million stateless people who hold no effective nationality, Refugees International revealed in a new report today. "Nationality Rights for All: A Progress Report and Global Survey on Statelessness" highlights how stateless people lack access to basic services and receive no legal protection.

"It is clear that identifying and reducing statelessness is achievable. It is possible to register every child at birth, to help stateless children access free education and to prohibit indefinite detention of stateless people," said Katherine Southwick, co-author of the report. "The Universal Declaration of Human Rights states that everyone has the right to a nationality, but millions of people still lack the proper recognition they need to lead normal lives. A loss of nationality rapidly amounts to a massive denial of basic human rights."

Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities meets for the first time

02 March 2009 -from 23 to 27 February 2009, the UN Committee which promotes and monitors the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, met for the first time in Geneva.

According to one of its 12 elected experts, Edah Maina, “the disabled have suffered in ignorance and silence. They are the people without any voice. Stigma and high levels of poverty have affected the voice of the parents and families who hide, chain, neglect and put in confinement their children or adults with disabilities. I want to be that voice of the voiceless and their families, to bring them justice and a better life.” The inaugural session of the Committee discussed the organization of its future work, which involves the examination of periodic reports from State Parties that have signed and ratified the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. The Committee also deals with individual complaints under the Convention’s Optional Protocol.

Save the Children Alliance calls on the UN General Assembly to prioritize education for children affected by conflict and natural disasters

18 March 2009 - Millions of children who cannot attend school because they live in areas affected by conflict or natural disasters will be in the spotlight today, as the United Nations General Assembly begins a formal debate on the importance of education in emergencies.

"The number of emergencies worldwide is increasing, from today's conflicts in Sri Lanka and Gaza to the recent natural disasters in Bangladesh and Myanmar, leading to an alarming number of children missing school," said Philip Abraham, Executive Director Save the Children New Zealand. "Every year an average of 750,000 children have their education disrupted or miss out entirely on education due to humanitarian disasters. Over half of the 75 million children out of school worldwide, 40 million children, live in areas affected by conflict”.

30 March 2009 - Save the Children has warned G20 leaders that an extra 10 million children are now malnourished because of world food price rises, and an additional 400,000 children could die by the end of the year as a result of the global financial collapse.

Millions of children could go hungry due to the impact of the credit crunch on developing countries, combined with continuing high food prices that mean the world's poorest families cannot feed their children properly.

New Amnesty International Report: Human Rights activists still face repression in the Middle East and North Africa

11 March 2009 - Human rights activists in the Middle East and North Africa still face persecution and repression, more than 10 years after the United Nations (UN) called on all states to support the work of people defending human rights.

A new Amnesty International report, Challenging Repression, details numerous cases that highlight the precarious situation of human rights defenders. They face intimidation, harassment, threats, detention without trial or long prison terms after unfair trials or death because of their efforts to uphold human rights.

Written Statement submitted by The Cairo Institute for Human Rights Studies (CIHRS): Accountability and Civilian Protection within Armed Conflicts of the Middle East

02 March 2009 - In a statement to the Human Rights Council, CIHRS expressed concern over disregard for the protection of civilians demonstrated by governments and armed militias involved in armed conflicts within the Arab region. In this regard, the statement also noted that in Iraq, despite reports of a relative decrease in the levels of violence, between September 2008 and February 2009, some 2183 Iraqis were killed within the ongoing conflict, of which 138 were reportedly killed in January 2009 alone.

It also called upon the Human Rights Council and UN member states to address the insufficient and highly selective manner in which the international community has carried out their Article 1 obligation to "ensure respect" for the Geneva Conventions and the protection of civilians during armed conflicts throughout the Arab region, and called upon the Council to pass a resolution denouncing the deteriorating respect for international humanitarian law in the Arab region, including in Iraq, the OPTs, Darfur and Yemen;

Iraq – A New Survey on Iraqi Women and their Families

12 March 2009 - Oxfam and the Al-Amal Association, the Iraqi partner organization that conducted the survey in the five provinces of Baghdad, Basra, Kirkuk, Najaf and Nineveh, do not claim that the information they gathered from 1,700 respondents represents the situation facing all Iraqis, or even all women in Iraq. However, it does provide a disturbing snapshot of many women's lives and those of their children and other family members. The information presented in this paper was collected over a period of several months, starting in the summer of 2008.

Israel/oPt – Child Rights Situation Analysis (Right to Protection in the occupied Palestinian territory).

17 March 2009 - This situation analysis by Defence for Children International (DCI)-Palestine Section and Save the Children-Sweden (SCS-Sweden) provides an overview of the extent to which Palestinian children living in the Occupied Palestinian Territory (oPt) in 2008 enjoy their rights to protection, as enshrined in international child rights standards. The scope of the analysis is not comprehensive, rather it focuses on the level of protection available to three particular target groups of children living in the oPt, in terms of laws, policies, mechanisms and practices. The target groups in question are children vulnerable to violence, neglect, abuse and exploitation in their homes and communities; children in conflict with the law under Palestinian Authority (PA) jurisdiction and children detained by Israel under its military order system.

Israel/oPt – World Vision urges international community to prioritise mental health needs of children

02 March 2009 - As donors meet today in Egypt to pledge funds for Gaza's reconstruction and recovery efforts, World Vision urges the international community to prioritise the immense psychosocial needs of Gaza's children.

Prolonged exposure to violence and poverty has left hundreds of thousands of children in the Gaza Strip facing severe mental health risks and in need of immediate support

"There is hardly a family in Gaza that has not been confronted with the pain of losing a loved one or close friend," said Charles Clayton, World Vision National Director for Jerusalem, West Bank and Gaza. "The level of suffering and distress is immense, particularly among children. Immediate efforts by the international community are greatly needed to address this tragedy," continued Clayton, who witnessed first hand the level of suffering and destruction when visiting Gaza in early February.

Jordan - Workshop conducted by the National Council for Family Affairs and UNICEF/ Jordan on Child Friendly Budgeting

The National Council for Family Affairs in coordination with UNICEF/ Jordan recently completed a three day workshop (2-4 March 2009) on "Child Friendly Budgeting", involving participants from the Governmental and Nongovernmental sectors. The Child Friendly Budget initiative aims at increasing the attention of policy makers and legislators on public spending that best responds to children's matters and priorities, ensuring its integration into governmental planning in the fields of health, education and social development.

This initiative strives for ensuring that children's needs are an integral part of the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the public policies and plans, and further intends to assure the grass roots support for the integration of child rights in every step of the budgetary decision making process. In addition, this initiative sets sights on strengthening the knowledge and capacity of the government representatives, parliamentarians, civil society organizations, academia and international organizations (donors) in child budget policy making and implementation.

Libya – Hundreds feared drowned off Libya

31 March 2009 - More than 200 African migrants are feared dead after their boat sank off the coast of Libya, the International Organization for Migration (IOM) says. Libyan officials say 21 people are confirmed dead and 23 rescued. Libyan media report that among the dead was an African woman found lifelessly clutching an infant to her bosom, says the BBC's Rana Jawad in Tripoli. The missing vessel reportedly ran into difficulty shortly after setting off on Sunday from Sidi Bilal, near Tripoli.
